LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL
from
THE SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY

To His Excellency, the Honorable John C. West, Governor of South Carolina, and to the Honorable Members of the General Assembly of South Carolina:

Dear Sirs:

We have the honor to transmit the report of the South Carolina State Library for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1971.

This report contains a summary of the efforts of the South Carolina State Library for the past year with particular emphasis upon the development of Institutional Library Service to the Blind and Physically Handicapped and Library construction work during the fiscal year.

You will notice that the information contained in this report shows the continued progress of the State Library in carrying out its mandate to assist in providing library service throughout South Carolina.

The State Library has handled substantial State and Federal funds entrusted to it with care with the object of obtaining the most good for the money expended.

All of you are invited to use the facilities of the State Library and to visit its magnificent building at 1500 Senate Street.

Respectfully submitted,
H. CARLISLE BEAN,
Chairman

THE SECOND ANNUAL REPORT THE SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY

July 1, 1970—June 30, 1971

The South Carolina State Library was established by act of the Legislature in 1969. The agency had formerly been the South Carolina State Library Association, better known as the State Library Board. In establishing the new agency, the Legislature expanded the responsibilities of the original agency to include all the duties of a general state library.

The South Carolina State Library is responsible for creating and improving public and institutional library service throughout the State, for reference and research service to State Government and State Government Agencies; for providing library service to the visually and physically handicapped; for the supervision of public library building construction in the State; for reference and interlibrary loan service; for consultant service to public libraries and State institutions. The State Library administers State Aid to public libraries and Federal funds under the Library Services and Construction Act. A major responsibility is the provision of leadership and guidance in the planning and coordination of the development of library and information services in the State. Through coordinating its programs and services with those of other agencies and institutions, it aims at providing the widest possible access to the library and information resources of the State to insure more effective and economical service for all library users.

Services to State Government: The South Carolina State Library provides reference and research facilities to serve State Government and State Government Agencies. Its book collection of over 100,000 volumes is basic to this service and is expanded through teletype connections with libraries throughout the country. Up-to-date information on a wide range of subjects is provided through a collection of over 300 current periodicals and journals. Back files of these periodicals are available on microfilm. The entire collection of ERIC documents is available on microfiche and provides the results of current research to the solution of local problems in the broadest field of education. In addition there is a collection of State, local and Federal documents which contribute to the effectiveness of reference service in all areas.

The State Library serves as a "second line of defense" for all public and institutional libraries in the State in providing materials and reference services not available locally. All members of State Government and employees of State agencies may use the South Carolina State Library directly for reference and research. Any library in the State may refer adult patrons to the State Library for materials and services not available locally.

The South Carolina State Library is the center of an information network designed to meet the library and information needs of the people of the State. Its extensive collections of books and materials are used by libraries throughout the State in meeting the needs of patrons. Through its TWX installation it has access to the holdings of major libraries in the United States.

READER SERVICES

The State Library's reference and reader services for State agencies and State government developed steadily through the first full year of operation. The use of books and materials increased each month; State employees are becoming regular library users. The majority of reference questions from State agencies required detailed subject searches.

New Resources for State Government and State Agencies, a monthly publication containing a listing of new materials, is mailed to department heads and supervisors in State agencies to inform them of recent acquisitions in their interest areas. The State Library works closely with State agencies in developing the library's collection. Many materials have been acquired at the request of State agencies and are available for individuals in all agencies, thereby eliminating expensive duplication.

As a cooperative venture with the State Department of Education, the State Library is receiving and maintaining the microfiche collection from the Educational Resources Information Center (ERIC) of the U.S. Office of Education. The ERIC project is a national system of clearinghouses responsible for collecting and indexing publications on all phases of education. The publications are supplied on microfiche to the State Library. At present, over 52,000 titles are available at the library. This collection has proved extremely valuable to many State agencies as well as to the general public.

REFERENCE AND INTERLIBRARY LOAN SERVICE

To supplement the resources and to strengthen the information services of South Carolina public libraries, since 1957 the Reference and Interlibrary Loan Service has provided a strong collection of in-depth background materials and specialized technical materials for interloan, a skilled professional reference staff to interpret and to answer requests for information, and consultation service to aid local libraries in developing their own collections and improving their reference capabilities. From time to time workshops are held in various sections of the State to increase the reference skills of local public library personnel. Beginning in February 1970, a similar service is being provided to libraries in State-operated institutions, and beginning in January 1971, a reciprocal interlibrary loan service is being offered to selected South Carolina special libraries on an experimental basis.

STATE DOCUMENTS

In August 1970, the South Carolina State Library began developing a collection of South Carolina State publications. This special collection has a potential for providing retrospective and current information about the State. The library requested three copies of all publications from each agency, one for permanent retention in the library and two for circulation. Although at present the collection is incomplete, it is added to continuously and is used extensively for research. To acquaint the public with the existence of individual items, the Checklist of South Carolina State Publications, a bibliography of State documents received by the State Library during the past fiscal year, is issued annually. The first issue was published in April 1971.

TECHNICAL SERVICES

The Technical Services Department ordered and processed 8,196 books during the year, bringing total holdings to 90,499 volumes. The Department also ordered and processed all other educational materials purchased by the library, including current newspapers and periodicals, periodicals and newspapers on microfilm, and materials on microfiche.

The Technical Services Department supervised preparation and began the microfilming of a micro-automated catalog. When complete, a copy of the State Library's catalog on microfilm will be made available to the Area Reference Resource Centers in the Greenville, Florence, and Charleston county libraries. The film can then be read on a reader-printer, needed titles selected, copies of catalog items photographed and mailed as a request for interlibrary loan. A supplement to the catalog will be prepared annually to keep it up-to-date. The micro-automated catalog will make the State Library collection more accessible throughout the state, promote interlibrary cooperation, provide security for catalog records, and facilitate interlibrary loan requests and handling. The catalog can be produced at a minimal cost compared to other methods.

FEDERAL AID TO SOUTH CAROLINA LIBRARIES

The South Carolina State Library is responsible for the administration and supervision of Federal Aid to South Carolina libraries provided under the Library Services and Construction Act. The State Library prepares a general State Plan for the use of these funds and an Annual Program for the use of funds during any one specific fiscal year. Grant funds are used for the improvement of public library service, the construction of adequate public library buildings, the establishment and improvement of library service in State institutions, the development of interlibrary cooperative systems, the provision of library service to the blind and physically handicapped, and the extension of service to the disadvantaged. All projects are designed to remedy major deficiencies in library service.

The major program undertaken at the State level with LSCA funds is the general administration of the entire program together with its planning and evaluation. Supervision of the projects conducted at the local level is provided through a Field Service Program. Professional staff working in this area provide the necessary direction and evaluation of local projects.

PERSONNEL PROJECTS

The success of the South Carolina library program is dependent upon well trained and experienced professional and non-professional staff to implement the program at the local level. The State Library conducts a personnel program which includes several projects designed to recruit, train, and retain qualified personnel.

Intern Program: The Intern Program with its related publicity is designed to attract qualified young people into the library profession. A continuing project since 1959, it provides work-training experience during the summer for college students and recent graduates, allowing them to explore the possibilities of a library career. During 1970-71, eleven young people were awarded internships in ten public library systems. In a related project, one intern was employed in a State institution under Title IV-A.

(includes interns under Title IV-A)
Total number of internships given, summer of 1971	12

Scholarship Program: Through this program, several scholarships of $2,500 each are awarded each year to qualified college graduates for one year's attendance at an accredited graduate library school. Each scholarship recipient is sponsored by a county or regional library in the state which guarantees professional employment after graduation. The program helps to obtain adequately trained professional librarians for South Carolina public libraries. During 1970-71, three people were granted scholarships. These scholarship recipients were sponsored by the Aiken-Bamberg-Barnwell-Edgefield Regional Library, the Lancaster County Library, and the Anderson County Library. As of June 30, 1971, forty-two people had entered library school under either the scholarship program or the work-study program which preceded it. Of these, four people withdrew without completing the program. The Scholarship Program has made a direct contribution to the improvement of library service in South Carolina. With the increase in the number of qualified applicants for professional library positions, the scholarship program is being discontinued as no longer needed.

In-Service Training Opportunities: In order to improve library service immediately, the State Library provides training opportunities for professional and non-professional personnel currently employed in public libraries. Scholarship grants are given for regular courses in librarianship or for attendance at special workshops, institutes, or professional meetings which will contribute to the individual's professional competence. During 1970-71, fourteen non-professional staff members from eight county and regional libraries were awarded scholarships for courses in library science. Basic courses such as reference, book selection, and children's literature were taken by the recipients.

SALARY SUPPLEMENT PROGRAM

Since 1965, the Salary Supplement Program has provided grants to assist South Carolina public libraries in raising salary levels for professional and pre-professional personnel to the standards recommended by the South Carolina Library Association. Designed as an incentive program and requiring evidence of local effort, the project aided county and regional library systems rapidly to meet the 1964 and 1966 salary standards. In 1970-71, five libraries received grants to help them in their continuing effort to achieve the level of the 1968 standards. Two of this number had reached this goal by the end of the fiscal year.

COUNTY LIBRARY PROJECT

The purpose of the County Library Project is to create units of service with sufficient population and financial resources to provide good library services by encouraging the unification of independent public library agencies into a single county system serving the entire population. The State Library provides grants-in-aid as well as professional advice and assistance during a demonstration program intended to make the new library system a model of recommended practices and procedures. Since 1957, unified county library systems have been developed through this project in Anderson, Greenville, Beaufort, Florence, and York counties.

In 1970-71, the Darlington County Library completed a three year demonstration program which consolidated the public libraries of Darlington and Hartsville, and the former County Circulating Library with resulting improvements in service for all residents. The Marion County Library was established by legislation enacted in 1970 and began operation in October of that year. The new library system combined the resources of the municipal libraries of Marion, Mullins, and Nichols. Local financial support has been provided and a beginning made toward establishing a sound basis for county-wide service.

REGIONAL LIBRARY PROJECT

The Regional Library Project provides for the creation of multi-county units of service where a single county is too small to furnish a sound basis of library service. By joining together in a regional system, several small counties can provide a higher level of library service through the sharing of materials, resources, equipment, and personnel. Under the provisions of individual contracts developed to meet local needs, the South Carolina State Library and the regional library board agree to cooperate in a demonstration of good public library service. From 1966-1971, the Abbeville-Greenwood Regional Library participated in a five-year demonstration program. This regional project made possible the development of good library service in Abbeville County with construction of a modern functional headquarters library building in Abbeville and extension of service throughout the county by means of bookmobiles and branches. For Greenwood County it meant a substantial strengthening of book and periodical resources, improved bookmobile and branch library service, additional professional staff members, and a broader range of headquarters services. For the entire region, the demonstration program resulted in improved administration and financial management, a strong organizational basis for future growth, participation in State and Federal projects providing supplementary resources and services, and a position of prestige and leadership in the State Library program.

SMALL LIBRARIES PROJECT—1970-71

The Small Libraries Project enables a well-established county library to extend service by contract to a neighboring county without county-wide service. Prior to the initiation of a Small Libraries Project in 1968-69, Clarendon County had had no public library service. In this third and final year of the project, the Sumter County Library continues to provide bookmobile service to five communities in Clarendon County under contract with the Clarendon County Library Board and the State Library.

With the end of the Small Libraries Project contract on June 30, 1971, the State Library's grant was no longer available and the Clarendon County Library Board assumed responsibility for the entire cost of the project. It is hoped that in the near future a county headquarters library can be developed and that eventually a regional library system with Sumter County can be formed.

BOOK COLLECTION IMPROVEMENT PROJECT

The Book Collection Improvement Project which was begun in 1960 has been a major contributing factor in up-grading the book collections of public libraries throughout the state. Emphasis on specific areas of the book collection has varied over the past ten years with the net result that public librarians find themselves better able to serve adults, young people, and children through their reference, non-fiction, and fiction collections. Books acquired through the project have made in-depth subject coverage possible to broader segments of the population.

During the past year, the project provided for grants-in-aid on a per capita basis for the purchase or rebinding of books of proven value chosen from standard book selection tools. In 1970-71, eighteen county library systems qualified for participation in the project at a total expenditure of $148,306.

PERIODICAL PROJECT

The Periodical Project has been a continuing project since 1964. Developed as an extension of the Book Collection Improvement Project, it allows public library systems to improve reference collections through purchase and retention of extensive periodical files. The project has enabled participating libraries to give improved reference service to all areas of the general public as well as to provide for the growing needs of business and industry. In 1970-71, twenty-four library systems qualified for participation in the project at a total expenditure of $12,198.

Under construction: Anderson County Library headquarters building.

Construction grants approved: Cherokee County Library and Fort Mill Branch of the York County Library.

The Appalachian Commission made additional grants to the Anderson, Cherokee, Greenville, Pickens, and Seneca projects.

To qualify for a construction grant, a library must be legally established, meet requirements for State and Federal Aid, and demonstrate need. Priority and the amount of the grant are based on the type of library (i.e., regional or county headquarters, branch library, etc.) and population served. Matching local funds must be at least 34% of total construction cost, and adequate local funds for maintenance and operation must be guaranteed.

LSCA TITLE IV-A: INSTITUTIONAL LIBRARY SERVICES

Fourteen state institutions qualify for assistance under Title IV-A of the Library Services and Construction Act. This assistance includes grants for strengthening the book collections, participation in the personnel programs of the State Library, and professional assistance from the staff of the State Library.

As a result of this program administrators have become aware of the importance of library service in the institution, and institutional funds for library support have been increased.

Three institutions too small to support separate libraries participate in this program. A three way contract between the South Carolina State Library, the Florence County Library, and the Crippled Children's Convalescent Center, provides library service to the patients. The Children's Librarian visits the Center on a regular schedule to circulate books, show filmstrips, and conduct storyhours. The two alcoholic rehabilitation centers, Palmetto in Florence and Holmesview in Greenville, receive each year collections of carefully chosen paperback books to assist in the therapy program. The books are strategically located in areas frequented by residents to make them very accessible.

The Advisory Council, of representatives of State institutions eligible for assistance under this title, offered valuable advice and suggestions for the operation of the program.

LSCA TITLE IV-B: LIBRARY SERVICES TO THE HANDICAPPED

North Carolina and South Carolina jointly support a Regional Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped. Service is available, free of charge, to persons who have been certified to the regional library as unable to use conventional reading material. Talking book machines, talking books, books in Braille, cassettes, tapes, and large print books are available. This material is mailed directly to the borrower and postage is free.

As of June 30, 1971, there was a total of 1,986 blind and handicapped South Carolinians using this service.

In order to provide some direct service, the State Library sponsored collections of talking books in Charleston, Greenville, and Spartanburg county libraries. These centers give the blind and handicapped direct access to talking books and the guidance of a librarian in selecting them.

A Books-in-Large-Print project was offered to libraries which had not previously participated in such a project. The State Library matched dollar for dollar up to $250 local funds expended for large print books. Nine libraries received grants.

The Advisory Council, composed of representatives of State and private agencies concerned with the visually and physically handicapped, was helpful in advising on the extension and improvement of the service.
